Troops With Fixed Bayonets on Guard in Rome

BARRISTER AND EDITOR HEARD AT ROBINSON TRIAL

FEELING RUNS HIGH IN ROME FOLLOWING FRUSTRATION OF PLOT ON MUSSOLINI'S LIFE

Troops Guarding Places in Italian Capital Government Fears Fascists Would Attack if Outbreaks Should Occur; Ex-deputy Charged as Gunman and Two Others Are Held in Prison To-day.

Rome, Nov. 6.—Troops with bristling bayonets to-day were cordoning headquarters of the Socialist Party and that of the Free Masons in the Justinian Palace here, where, it is asserted, the plot to assassinate Premier Mussolini as he stood on the balcony of the Chigi Palace during the celebration of the anniversary of Italy's victory over Austria was fomented.

Other soldiers similarly prepared for immediate action were guarding other Free Mason and Socialist gathering places, the offices of newspapers opposed to the Fascist Government and various centres which might possibly be attacked by Fascists who are still enraged over the plan to shoot the Premier from a window as he reviewed the passing troops.

MINISTERS DISCUSS CABINET CHANGES

Departmental Amalgamations Subject of Exchange of Views in Ottawa To-day

Peter Heenan, Kenora-Rainy River, Mentioned as New Minister of Labor

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—The Federal Cabinet is to meet again this afternoon. It is possible the question of departmental amalgamations and the necessary by-elections will be discussed this afternoon. As well as this, it is understood a vast amount of routine department work has accumulated during the election campaign which must soon be disposed of by the Cabinet.

Premier King has been keeping the members of his Cabinet close to Ottawa during the past week and the meetings of the last few days have been fully attended.

Peter Heenan, Liberal member-elect for Kenora-Rainy River, is mentioned as a possible successor to Hon. James Murdock as Minister of Labor, but the report lacks official confirmation.

The death of J. E. Marcell, member-elect for Bagot, Que., creates the first vacancy in the new Parliament of Canada and raises a problem. So far as can be ascertained, it is the first occasion on which a member-elect has died before the writ of election has been returned, and there is doubt if by-election procedure can be opened before the returns are made from Bagot. The return is likely, however, to be here within a few days.

CONSTITUENCY FOR PREMIER

The suggestion has been made that Premier King might decide to run in Bagot, but in official circles this is not thought likely. With the leaders of both Liberal and Conservative parties, a period of comparative quiet is expected here for the time being.

OTTAWA BUILDING SCENE OF SUICIDE

Man Shot Himself in Corridor Outside Office of Minister of Justice

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—August Swanson, a middle-aged Scandinavian, shot and killed himself this morning in the East Block of the Parliament Buildings, in the corridor outside the office of the Minister of Justice. Swanson was well known in many government offices as a seeker after certain vague claims for certain Dominion lands out of which he declared he had been swindled.

NUMEROUS LETTERS

Files of correspondence in several departments show incoherent letters setting forth claims for property, the definite location of which he could never establish. The letters extend over the last four years. The sound of the shot was heard through the building, but little attention was paid to it. A constable of the Mounted Police stationed near the door of the building was the first to see the fallen man. The bullet entered just above the heart and death was almost instantaneous.

B.C. WOULD FACE EXPENDITURE OF ABOUT $20,000,000 SHOULD HOUSE APPROVE P.G.E. SCHEME

If the Provincial Legislature should decide to accept H. G. Perry's scheme for the extension of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway from Vancouver into the Peace River country this Province would have to spend another $20,000,000 or more on its Government-owned railway, members of the Cabinet declared to-day.

Such a programme, it was explained, would carry the line into the Peace River country, but would provide no assurance that the Province's enormous expenditures would be repaid for many years.

Members of the Government do not believe that even with such an expenditure the P.G.E. could be wiped out of the treasury within a long time, as settlement of the Peace River country, under the best conditions, would require many years. Meanwhile the Province would have to pay out enormous sums in interest on the new railway loan and to make up operating deficits.

Should the P.G.E. be built into the Peace River country there is no assurance, according to the Government's information, that its agricultural production would travel over the Government line to Vancouver. On the contrary, it would likely go to Prince George, and from there on the Canadian National line to Prince Rupert, the nearest tidewater point. As a matter of fact, the Peace River country is logically tributary to Stewart and not to Vancouver or even Prince George, according to expert advice which the Government has received on the question.

Members of the Government, discussing the matter to-day, recalled that when three of the leading railway experts of Canada were appointed to investigate the P.G.E. situation some years ago they reported that development of the Peace River country would not necessarily improve the condition of the railway from Prince George to Vancouver as Prince Rupert is nearer to the northern hinterland than is the terminal City of Vancouver.

At Wong Abduction Hearing To-day J. H. Senkler, K.C., Told Judge and Jury in Vancouver of Conversations With M. B. Jackson, K.C., and Attorney-General Manson; J. S. Cowper, Editor of Vancouver Weekly Tribune, Testified About Conversation With Jackson.

Vancouver, Nov. 6.—Evidence of conversations with M. B. Jackson, K.C., and Hon. A. M. Manson, Attorney-General of British Columbia was given for the defence of Oscar B. V. Robinson and William Robinson at the resumed hearing of the charge of abduction of Wong Foon Sing in assize court here to-day by J. H. Senkler, K.C.

He testified Mr. Jackson had sought his consent to a letter to Wong Foon Sing, while held captive by his kidnappers, and that Mr. Jackson had couched the letter in language to the effect that no harm would befall the Chinese if he told the truth.

Mr. Senkler gave evidence of a two-hour conversation with Mr. Manson, saying the Attorney-General had told him that he had been interviewed during Wong's captivity by Police Commissioner H. O. McDonald of Point Grey, and that when McDonald had commenced to talk of the abduction to the Attorney-General, he had replied that he did not want to hear anything about it.

Witness stated Mr. Jackson had promised him a photograph of Wong while he was incarcerated, and that a photograph subsequently was delivered at his, Mr. Senkler's, office.

J. S. Cowper, editor of The Vancouver Weekly Tribune, was a witness who held captive in the Twenty-fifth Avenue house, and he said he had discussed the case with Mr. Jackson and that the latter knew who was holding the Chinaman.

Counsel defending the three Point Grey police officers who are charged with kidnapping have been notified that Oscar B. V. Robinson and A. White will be Crown witnesses. White is alleged to have been the driver of the automobile which conveyed Wong from the place where he was released on Marine Drive.

$1,000 FUND
Vancouver, Nov. 6.—When the trial of O. B. V. Robinson and his son William, charged with illegally abducting Wong Foon Sing, Chinese, was resumed at the assizes here this morning, W. A. Sheppard, treasurer and collector for the corporation of Point Grey, was called and cross-examined by J. E. Bird, defence counsel. He told of a contingency fund for the police commission of $1,000. Five cheques had been paid from this totaling $1,270. His examination ended there.

Inspector Forbes, Crutchank of the Provincial Police was then called, and the defence counsel asked if it had been discussed there that the only way to get the required information was the death of Janet Smith was to put Wong away somewhere and examine him at leisure.

The inspector answered in the negative. "Did you ever, after August 24, speak to Robinson about an abduction?"

"Answer—No, only once when I said to him that the police would have nothing to do with it. I had no knowledge myself of who abducted him, nor did the police officers under me, so far as I know."

Wong Foon Sing was recalled and questioned about how long he had been on the floor in Robinson's office the first time he was held for investigation. He said that when he was in the room Robinson knocked him down, took off his clothes and searched him everywhere for some piece of paper. He had lain on the floor for about ten minutes.

OUTLINE OF DEFENCE

Mr. Bird then opened his defence with a short address to the jury. He said it was his intention to prove Robinson was in the employ of the Point Grey police officials and the Attorney-General. He said he would show Robinson had interviewed the Attorney-General, when the matter was thoroughly discussed. He said he would also show a letter from M. B. Jackson, K.C., saying the Government would have no part in such a procedure. But he would also show the Government had promised an indemnity to Robinson for his work, and that he would have nothing to fear, as any action would be stifled by the Provincial Police.

TO RECOUNT INTERVIEWS

J. S. Cowper said Mr. Bird would be called to show he knew of Robinson's authority. He would tell of interviews in this connection.

Members of the Robinson family would also be called. Mrs. Robinson had been alarmed about the transaction in which her husband and son were engaged, and wanted personal assurance from them, said Mr. Bird. He would show how this assurance had been given. He said he would also show many visits by Jackson to the Robinson home, and that he had known of the abduction. He would also show that Jackson had known of photographs to be taken of Wong and how Jackson had refused the use of his own expensive camera. Another camera had been procured, he said, and the photographs had been sent to Jackson in a roll of registered mail.

Jackson afterwards had warned Robinson never to send him any defence, by registered mail, said the defence lawyer.

COWPER TESTIFIES

J. S. Cowper, editor of The Saturday Tribune, who also faces a charge of abduction, was then called and gave the court details of a long discussion conversation between Robinson and M. B. Jackson, K.C. Cowper said he was in Robinson's office when the call was put in and after the usual delay the call had come back and Mrs. Donnelly, one of Robinson's operatives, called. He gave Robinson's conversation over the telephone to Jackson as follows:

"This is Vancouver. You know who it is. I am getting tired of holding this fellow without any money. I think you had better come over and bring some money."

TALKED ON WHARF

The witness went on to tell of meeting Jackson on Friday, April 17, a few days after the last distance telephone call. Cowper explained he was about to embark on a steamer going up the coast for a week-end fishing trip. Jackson had been at the gangway, and the two had discussed the abduction of Wong Foon Sing.

The lawyer had first referred to a story that had appeared in Cowper's paper, said the witness. He suggested to Cowper that they both knew who the man was who had kidnapped the Chinese houseboy.

"This chap won't release Wong," Jackson was said to have told the witness. "But I think I have evidence to put Wong on trial if I can get him away from this man. I want you to do it, to use your influence to have a letter delivered to Wong, promising him immunity from the authorities if he tells his story."

The witness told the court he had explained to Jackson he was only a newspaperman and had nothing to do with the abduction. He knew the man who held Wong and agreed with Jackson to use his influence to have a letter delivered.

"Neither of us admitted who this man was, but both seemed to know his identity," Cowper testified.

IN CHINESE

He said Jackson had gone on to discuss with the witness what form the letter might take. "My own idea is that it should be written in Chinese and authenticated by a man such as the Chinese consul," were the words Jackson used to the witness, he said.

At this point, Cowper explained, the boat blew a whistle and he ran to get aboard, Jackson telling him he would see him again.

Under cross-examination by C. W. Craig, prosecuting counsel, Cowper admitted that on April 17, and even a week before, that he knew who the man was who had kidnapped Wong Foon Sing. His first incredulity regarding the story told him by Robinson had been eliminated, he explained, after he had seen a letter from the Attorney-General to M. B. Jackson, K.C., in Robinson's office. He had pointed out to Robinson that the contents of the letter did not seem to substantiate the detective's story, but Robinson explained it was quite natural that the authorities would not say anything definitely or openly discuss the abduction.

"You did actually see then a letter from Manson to Jackson, bearing the signature of the Attorney-General?" Mr. Craig asked.

"Yes," declared Cowper. "Have you got it?" he was asked.

"No," the witness answered. "I never did have it. I only saw it in Robinson's office."

At the request of Mr. Craig for the details of the letter, Mr. Cowper said the Attorney-General had stated in a vague way that he did not agree with the proposition put up to him.

The letter was apparently in answer to a former letter and refrained from referring to anything specific.

"Will you swear Manson signed it?" the prosecutor again asked the witness.

"Yes," said Cowper. "The witness admitted he had started a campaign through his paper to raise money for Wong Foon Sing, and had received $60 in subscriptions, which was turned over to Robinson for the upkeep of the Chinaman."

"Then you really had no doubt as to the truth of Robinson's story?" the prosecutor suggested.

"No," was the answer. "At this point the prosecutor turned to defence counsel asking him to produce the letter referred to by Cowper."

Mr. Bird replied that it was impossible.

TELLS OF VISIT Cowper went on to tell, under the cross-examination of the prosecutor, of his visit to the house at 228 Avenue where Wong was confined. He put on one of the disguises used by the abductors and interrogated the Chinese boy on his knowledge of the death of Janet Smith. He also took a photograph of Wong.

"Did you profess to be a medical man?" the Crown asked.

"No," the witness answered rather vaguely.

"No? What is the reason for the hesitancy?" Mr. Craig inquired.

"Well," answered Cowper, "there is an explanation to go with my answer. I wanted to ascertain the physical condition of Wong Foon Sing."

"Oh, I see," returned the Crown counsel. "You did not want to have a murder charge laid against you."

"You wanted to see how long he would last?" Mr. Justice McDonald said.

Cowper continued with his answer without any reference to the remarks of the prosecutor or the bench. "I held his pulse and I asked him questions," the witness explained, "and every time I led him away from the kitchen table he would jump. That is one of the methods used in ascertaining whether a man is lying."

"We haven't got that opportunity here," counsel said, his lordship, amid roars of laughter in the courtroom. "I must apologize," explained the judge, smiling, after the laughter had subsided, "but I could not pass up this opportunity."

FINANCIAL HELP Cowper admitted to the court that he had given financial assistance during the imprisonment of Wong Foon Sing. Crown counsel reminded him he would be tried himself on the same charge on which he was testifying at the time.

"Are you going to plead guilty or not guilty?" the Crown asked.

"Not guilty," Cowper answered. After securing admissions from Cowper as to his knowledge and implication in the abduction, Mr. Craig suggested he thought he had better plead guilty.

"Did you ever advise anyone in authority of your knowledge before Wong's release?" he was asked.

"No," was the answer. "Did Inspector Cruickshank ask you to do anything about it?" Mr. Craig asked.

"Yes," said Cowper. "Did you say you knew anything at all about it?"

"Oh, no," said Cowper. "I told him I did not know who the man was."

Following further questioning as to his relations with Inspector Cruickshank, Mr. Bird, the defence counsel, raised the objection that the Crown was too severe in its cross-examination.

"It hurts your witness, doesn't it?" the judge remarked, and turned to the Crown. "Be a little more gentle, Mr. Craig."

After a few further questions, J. H. Senkler, K.C., counsel for Wong Foon Sing, when the Chinese was charged with murder, was called to the stand to testify on behalf of the accused.

He told of several conversations with M. B. Jackson about the abduction during the time that Wong was in captivity.

On the afternoon of April 18 he met Mr. Jackson at the office of the Chinese consul, where the latter drew up a draft of a letter he proposed to send to the Chinese.

LETTER PRODUCED The letter was produced in court. He read the letter to the jury, which intended to tell the Chinese boy that the police had no doubt that Janet Smith had been murdered and a bill it was not intended to scare him or threaten him, the letter said that if he would confess his knowledge of the death and give only the truth, he would have nothing to fear from the police.

It was not decided at that time, the witness said, whether or not the letter would be sent. Later, Mr. Senkler having discussed it with his law partner, told Mr. Jackson that he did not think that it should go.

SPOKE OF PHOTOGRAPH

A few days later Mr. Jackson came to his office, he said, and asked him if he was willing to see the Chinaman. While the witness was quite anxious to do so, Mr. Jackson, he turned a few days later and said it could not be arranged. He spoke of a photograph of Wong, and the same day he was told that he had any definite knowledge as to where it came from.

KNEW NOTHING OF ABDUCTION

Under cross-examination by Mr. Craig he told the court that Mr. Jackson never seemed to know who abducted Wong Foon Sing. On repeated occasions when questioned, Mr. Jackson had given the witness his word as a gentleman that he knew nothing about it.

He had discussed it with the Attorney-General one afternoon when Mr. Manson and General Odium had come to his office apparently for that purpose. Mr. Manson had told him on that occasion of a visit he had received from H. O. McDonald, Police Commissioner of Point Grey. The Attorney-General related to the witness how this man had something to tell him about the abduction, and he had stopped him.

"I don't want to know anything about it," the Attorney-General, the witness said, stated that afternoon.

On further questioning, from Mr. Craig, Mr. Senkler admitted he had told Mr. Manson at that time that he considered his action rather peculiar in the light of his office. Cross-examination more particularly on this conversation, and the actual words which had passed between witness and the Attorney-General, Mr. Senkler reiterated his former statements.

The Attorney-General sitting in the courtroom, shook his head.

Joseph Oliver, son of Premier John Oliver, who acted as Robinson's counsel at the preliminary hearing, testified that he had also acted for the accused man in an effort to secure some money from the Point Grey authorities.

He said he had telephoned Chief Murdoch and asked him for payment of $570 and had been told Robinson would have to go out there to get it. Later he had met the chief of police in Robinson's office, but he had refused to discuss the matter with the lawyer there.

Mr. Oliver said he also telephoned to Commissioner McDonald and told him he knew nothing about the abduction, but that he would have to see Murdoch about it.

Mr. Oliver was also questioned on a letter of introduction he gave Robinson to B. Jackson.

IMMUNITY CLAIMED

That she had heard Mr. Jackson assure her husband of immunity was the testimony of Mrs. Robinson, wife of the accused. She stated Mr. Jackson had called, visiting her husband, and while standing near the door in the next room she heard Mr. Jackson say, in reply to a query as to how he (Robinson) and his men stood: "The Attorney-General knows everything, but as a result of his position his hand must not be shown. You have nothing to fear. The Provincial Police will not bother you."

DISCUSSION REPORTED

Mrs. Robinson stated that on a Saturday and Sunday near November 1, 1924, Colonel McMullin, Inspector Forbes Cruickshank, Inspector Owen and Alex. Henderson had also visited her husband. Inspector Owen was not present on one of the days, she said, was not sure which. These men, she said, had discussed the Janet Smith case with her husband and seemed to agree that the only way to solve the case was to kidnap the Chinaman.

The witness declared that from what she had heard no arrangements had been made with Robinson for him to do the kidnapping.

CARRIED MESSAGES

Margaret Robinson stated she had seen Mr. Jackson when he visited the house on several occasions, and had carried messages to her father's office when Mr. Jackson was trying to get in touch with him. She picked Mr. Jackson out of the crowded courtroom and identified him as the man who had called to see her father.

Before adjournment Mr. Justice McDonald instructed the jury to make arrangements for a later sitting.

Mr. Bird stated his first witness in the resumption of the case at 2 p.m. would be William Robinson, one of the accused.

YESTERDAY'S HEARING

At the hearing yesterday afternoon, after considerable evidence connecting Point Grey police officials with the kidnapping had been heard, the prosecutor, C. W. Craig, K.C., objected and contended the testimony should be excluded because it was irrelevant.

"You are too late now," replied Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald. "I would have sustained you if you had objected before."

"I will tell the jury this evidence is no defence to the charge," the prosecution closed its case at 3.45 p.m. yesterday with the testimony of Constable J. W. Cruickshank, of the Provincial Police. Mr. Craig stated there were other witnesses whose names were on the back of the indictment, whom he would call, if requested by J. E. Bird, defence counsel, for cross-examination.

Defence counsel said he would cross-examine several of these witnesses.

said they had considered a place to interrogate Wong Foon Sing, and they considered the safest place to incarcerate the prisoner was in the municipal jail of Point Grey. As a result, he had rented the house of William Walker at 3512 Twenty-fifth Avenue, West.

During the forty-two days of Sing's captivity he was visited and interrogated by two Point Grey officials, said Norton, reading from his report. He added that a city doctor had been brought out to hypnotize Sing.

LEFT IN BUSHES

On May 1, Commissioner H. O. McDonald and Chief Murdoch of the Point Grey police visited the house, said Norton. Sing was that evening taken to an automobile and, accompanied by Norton, Sergeant Percy Kirkham of the Point Grey police and the driver of the car, taken to a destination, according to witness. He explained he had held the Chinaman, and fearing passersby might see the blindfolded man, had taken him into the bushes. He stated Chief Murdoch had signalled him to leave Sing. Norton had then left.

In answer to J. E. Bird, counsel for Robinson, witness stated he had notified M. B. Jackson, K.C., the Point Grey authorities and the elder Robinson, that he would give copies of his statement to Mr. Pooley, E. P. Davis, K.C., the Chinese consul and the editor of The Vancouver Daily Province, unless they did the same thing by him.

Constable J. W. Cruickshank of the Provincial Police identified various documents which had been seized in Robinson's office when he was arrested June 17.

On cross-examination, Mr. Bird produced to the witness a Vancouver post office registration slip, numbered 17,760, and dated March 25, for a package to M. B. J., at Victoria. The Crown admitted this had been found in Robinson's office.

"Did you make investigations to ascertain whether this registration receipt was for a package of photographs?" asked Mr. Bird.

"No, sir," was the reply. "Has my learned friend a copy of the letter written by Robinson to M. B. Jackson on February 25, 1925?" asked Mr. Bird of Mr. Craig.

"What's that?" interposed the judge. "You would be very fortunate if you could build up a defence by writing letters. Don't let us have any more of that."

WOMAN TESTIFIED

At the request of Mr. Bird, Mrs.

Elizabeth Donnelly took the witness stand for cross-examination. She testified she had been employed by Robinson in connection with the Janet Smith case and that she had seen M. B. Jackson, K.C., of Victoria, twice in Robinson's office. The first time, she testified, was three weeks after the abduction. On the next occasion, she said, she had overheard voices, and that of Mr. Jackson saying $1,500 to $2,000, and Robinson's reply: "It is not a matter of a bribe. It is justice and the reward I am after."

This conversation, she said, was not long before Sing was released.

On another occasion, testified Mrs. Donnelly, she had overheard a long distance conversation between Robinson and Jackson. She stated Cowper was taken to her home, and she was sure whether Robinson said "bring some money" or "how about money?" This occurred not long before the Chinaman was released, she said.

"How was the first abduction engineered?" asked Mr. Bird.

"I don't consider it was an abduction," said the witness. Witness considered the detention an interview.

The witness stated he had had nothing to do with M. B. Jackson, K.C., in the Janet Smith case.

ISSUE OF JUDGE IS BARRED FROM MAILS

Editors of New York Comic Weekly Surprised: French Periodicals Burlesqued

New York, Nov. 6.—A Post Office Department order was served yesterday on the publishers of Judge, a comic weekly, prohibiting use of the mails for distribution of the current issue, known as "The Parisian Number." Exception was not made to the issue as a whole, the editors said, but particularly to certain articles purporting to burlesque popular periodicals.

"The editors of Judge are at a loss to understand the basis of the department's action," declared a statement issued from the publication's executive offices. "The burlesques were prepared to show the misconception of French humor widely held in this country, and we think are entirely free from suggestiveness and really comprise nothing but wholesome humor."

Leading British Columbia mining men will attend a dinner to be given under the auspices of the B.C. Mining Association here to-night. Premier Oliver will represent the Government. The dinner will be followed by the association's annual business session.

MR POOLEY'S SMALL TALK

NO DOUBT IT IS PART OF THE BUSINESS of an Opposition party to tell the Government in office as frequently as possible during the session of a Legislature that the electorate is sick and tired of the administration it is getting. But it ought to be understood even by one so young and inexperienced in leadership as Mr. Pooley that the general public takes much of this for granted and then looks for and expects the members of the party not in charge of the business of government to contribute more towards the management of its affairs than mere unintelligent criticism of the actions of their opponents.

Mr. Pooley's speech the other day was of the same quality as the speeches he has previously made in the House. Not a single constructive sentence did he utter. It was a softening over of political garbage for the most part and, by the same token, the garbage was largely of his own making. He was no doubt thoroughly taken aback at the Government's candor in respect of the one matter of importance with which he dealt. To be told by the Premier that a mistake had been made in university expenditures, that the Government was making no excuses, looked for no mercy, and awaited the verdict of the House, deprived the Opposition leader of a spacious opportunity to let off many more political fireworks.

Then the Opposition leader's reference to the case of the member for Kamloops was surely an undignified exhibition for a lawyer to indulge in after the judgment of the courts has been rendered. Imagine Mr. Bowser, indefatigable in his efforts to score a point as he was, so far forgetting the rudiments of political strategy as to snap his finger at the bench! In his case, of course, experience would tell.

Mr. Pooley must be a great disappointment to his followers. They have grown weary of the petty things and demand something of a constructive nature. Surely the Opposition leader is not so barren of ideas that he must needs deliver the same speeches year after year, brought a little up-to-date; it is true, but in the main the very same small talk.

A NEW ANGLE

SENATOR DRAKE-BRACKMAN OF Western Australia has returned to his home in the Antipodes with a peculiar warning about the League of Nations and its works. He tells the Commonwealth after attending the assembly in Geneva as a delegate to watch its deliberations most closely because "while much good might accrue, much harm may be done to Australia and the Empire." The Senator apparently reaches this view on his own belief that "many of the delegates are idealists and idealism seems to be the dominant note of most of the deliberations."

In view of what has recently taken place, both at Locarno and at the meeting of the League's Council in Paris, the observations of this Australian delegate seem woefully discordant. In preventing a war between Greece and Bulgaria the League scored a great triumph which more than justified its existence.

The average individual will inquire whether it is not time for the world to try a little idealism and see how much can be turned to practical account. The old method of international dealing where disputes were concerned was anything but a success. It is obvious then that the new plan is very promising. There is more than the recent indication that it will be a very great deal better.

NOT A QUESTION OF VOTES

EVER SINCE THE MORNING PAPER discovered that the Oliver Government was endorsed by the electorate last year on less than fifty per cent. of the total votes cast it has persisted in the contention that an Administration in office on such a basis of minority support does not represent the real sentiment of the people. It now says that the vote by majorities in the recent Federal election "shows very conclusively what the sentiment of the country is and it is could be taken as a criterion it is an indication that a Conservative Government commanding a clear majority over all parties is the need of the time and the desire of the people."

One has only to study the results of elections, provincial and Federal, in this country to appreciate the lack of point in such an argument as this. But the fallacy of the morning paper's contention is still more strongly emphasized by a reference to the distribution of votes to the various parties in the Old Country at elections there during the last forty-five years. The analogy is an excellent one, of course, because it can be drawn between the selection of a House of 245 members and one of 615 members. Take the 1922, 1923 and 1924 elections in Great Britain as fair examples of how fallacious it would be to challenge public sentiment in a general sense on the allocation of votes alone. In 1922, the election which followed the famous Carlton Club meeting and the collapse of the coalition, the Conservative party led by the late Mr. Bonar Law rolled up a House majority of 73; but the anti-Conservative vote plurality was no less than 2,359,372. To argue that the sentiment of the people had not changed politically since 1906 and 1910, when three elections gave the Liberals, under Campbell-Bannerman and Asquith, respectively, big majorities, is beside the point. The 1922 election was fought on the party system issue alone. It was to end government by compromise. The contest of 1923, however, presents another complex. A Labor-Liberal House majority of 99, replacing a Tory majority of 73, merely increased the anti-Conservative vote plurality to 2,746,859. Then take Mr. Baldwin's victory of last year. He changed a Labor-Liberal majority of 99 into a Tory majority of no less than 223, the second largest since the Reform Act, and still the vote plurality favored the Labor-Liberal opposition by no less than 624,390—not a great deal in a total ballot of nearly 18,000,000, but still significant in the light of the overwhelming House majority for the other party.

What is true of the more recent elections is also true of earlier ones. In 1880 a Liberal House majority carried with it a vote plurality of 206,684. In 1865 a reduced House majority, 170, increased the vote margin to 521,320. Then in 1886, the memorable Home Rule election which followed Gladstone's defeat on the second reading of his bill, a Conservative House majority of 118 carried with it a vote plurality of only 82,634—remarkably small in view of the complete turnover and the enormous public interest manifested in that election. With a House majority of 40 in 1892 the Liberals were on the right side in the matter of votes to the extent of 236,304. Yet in 1895 the Conservatives were elected once more with a House majority of 152, with an opposition vote plurality of 60,717. The Tory majority in 1900 was reduced to 134, but the party then rolled up a vote plurality of 73,157. These two elections illustrate vividly the vagaries of the British electoral system. In 1906 the great Liberal landslide, with Tariff Reform as the sole issue, took place. Yet the party majority of 356, the largest on record, only gave the Liberals a vote plurality of 1,704,987. Compare this with the 1922 election, when the Tories had a House majority of 73 with a vote minority of 2,359,372. In the January election of 1910 the Liberals had a House majority of 124 and a vote plurality of 411,630. In December of that year the two totals were changed to 122 and 381,023 respectively. Then came the 1918, or khaki, election in which the Coalition Government was sustained with a majority of 224 and a vote plurality of 818,997.

From the foregoing survey of British elections since 1880 it will thus be obvious that the apparent conflict of view as represented by the distribution of votes and the political complexion of a House is merely incidental under the present electoral system operating in Canada and Great Britain. It is interesting to note, however, that out of the 23 British Parliaments since 1832, excluding the Coalition, 14 have been Liberal Governments and 9 Conservative—with vote pluralities largely with the Liberals on nearly every occasion whether in office or not.

WISE TO THE REDS

CONTRARY TO A GENERAL SUPPOSITION, the annual municipal elections in Great Britain are very seldom of the least use as an indication of the political trend of thought throughout the country. In days gone by, for instance, particularly when Moderates and Progressives battled in the London boroughs with "It's Your Money-We Want" posters glaring at the elector from every billboard, it frequently happened that the winning party would be quite out of harmony with the dominating political power of the day. It is not surprising, therefore, that the recent somewhat striking gains made by Labor should be made at a time when a Conservative government at Westminster is enjoying the temporary advantage of a large majority at Westminster. What is surprising, however, is the general result in Scotland. There considerable apprehension was felt, since the radical elements of the party appear to wield more influence to the North of the Tweed than they do to the South of it, lest Labor's success might mean further challenges to constituted municipal authority. But the reverse was the case. Complete returns show that while Tuesday's elections resulted in comparatively little change in the parties as a whole, the success of the moderate members of the Labor party against the extreme wing candidates was a noteworthy feature of the voting. Here is an indication that the people do not intend to expose themselves to any more Poplar or West Ham experiments or permit themselves to be governed in their municipalities by the parlor or any other kind of Bolshevism. No doubt recent official action against the Moscow agents is having its effect.

THE LIGHTHOUSES

To the Editor:—Once again we ask the kind people of Victoria to remember the Lighthouses and to send all the books and magazines they can spare to the Victoria Wood and Coal Office, Broad Street, for the Ladies' Guild for Sailors. The fog this year, which we have found so depressing, must have been almost unbearable, with no Times to cheer the dinner table, and no friends to drop in with a cheery word, so I hope we shall all think of our brothers (and sisters in some cases), the lonely watchers by the sea and wait for the courtesy you always catered to us.

President Ladies' Guild for Sailors.

FLUSH THE SEWERS

To the Editor:—Reading the letter in the Times of November 4 from "D.M." regarding the sewers, I should like to say that we have no objection to the sewerage system, particularly towards the city limits. There have been several cases of juvenile sickness in this district, and if the sewers could be flushed, as "D.M." suggests, it would be eliminating at least one of the likely causes, besides being to the benefit of the general public.

Sidney

Special to The Times
Sidney, Nov. 5.—The regular monthly meeting of the North Saanich Ladies' Chapter of the I.O.G.E. was held at the home of Mrs. Bodkin on Thursday afternoon. The regular business of the chapter was transacted. Mrs. Campbell was in the chair. Sixteen members were present. The secretary, Mrs. Rochford, read the minutes, which were adopted. In the absence of the treasurer, there was no financial report. It was decided to give the patriotic I.O.G.E. calendar, one for each room to the schools in North Saanich. It was also decided to help financially the Hospital for Women in London, England, as they are trying to endow a Canadian bed. It was arranged to hold a bridge and 500 case party at the end of the month in the afternoon. The committee with power to add to their number are Mrs. Rochford, Mrs. Nelson and Miss C. Nelson. Miss Hildebrand was proposed as a new member. Other business was discussed. Miss Campbell from Winnipeg gave an interesting address on the Zenna Bible Mission and I.O.G.E. work in India. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to Miss Campbell. The meeting adjourned with the singing of the National Anthem to meet next month at the home of Mrs. Goddard, "Sea Point." Mrs. Bodkin served tea.

Motorists Warned
To Observe Rules
In Passing Cars

Motorists George Jay, who are in the habit of making mad rushes to pass street cars about to stop to pick up passengers when he fined two drivers this morning.

"Passengers who are about to board street cars," said Magistrate Jay at the conclusion of the case against Thomas Mayo, "have their rights and must be protected."

Thomas Mayo was driving along Government Street on October 30 when a group of passengers waiting for a street car partially blocked his way. Mayo struck one of the men and although the man was not hurt Mayo was charged with an infraction of the Motor Vehicles Act. It was pointed out by the court that a motorist was obliged to bring his car to a stop ten feet behind a street car if he saw it was about to come to a standstill.

Louie Hong, a Chinaman, was also charged with driving past a street car. Although he caused no damage by his action he was fined $15, as was Hong—also paid $2.50 costs for an interpreter.

SUNDAY SCHOOL
TEACHER BECOMES
OPERATIC STAR

Mary Lewis Who Ran Away
From Home Hailed as Second Jeritza

New York, Nov. 6.—Mary Lewis, former chorus singer, Polles actress and moving picture bathing beauty, who ran away from her foster parents' home in Little Rock, Ark., eight years ago to join a musical comedy company, has signed a contract to appear with the Metropolitan Opera Company. Miss Lewis was a Sunday school choir teacher and organist in Little Rock.

In California the road show she joined was stranded and Miss Lewis became a bathing beauty in motion picture comedies. Five years ago she came to New York and obtained a job in a Greenwich village cabaret where the Polles manager heard her sing and signed her as a principal. She was with the Polles for two years. She was discovered several years ago by Otto H. Kahn, Metropolitan patron at a performance at the Polles. He arranged an audience before Gatti Casazza, manager of the Metropolitan, who immediately offered her a contract. She amazed everybody by refusing the contract, saying that she intended to go abroad to study.

Her operatic debut was made in Vienna where she was hailed as another Jeritza. Later she achieved successes in London and Paris, and during the latter part of last summer she appeared in Deauville and Monte Carlo.

Mission Band Rally—The mission bands of the United Church in Victoria will hold their first joint rally in the schoolroom of the Metropolitan Church on Saturday, November 7, at 3 p.m. Ten bands, including the Chinese and Japanese, are hoping to take part. A short programme has been prepared, which should prove very interesting, and everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Australian Legislature Rejects Bill For Women Members

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 6.—(Canadian Press Cable)—The Legislative Council of New South Wales by a vote of 28 to 25 yesterday rejected second reading of the Government Bill to enable women to sit as members of the Council.

Some of the members advanced the view that inasmuch as the State Labor caucus had instructed the ministry (which is a Labor ministry) to request the Governor to appoint thirty-five new members of the Council so that the Legislative Council might vote itself out of existence, it would be farcical to support a Bill to enable women to sit there.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 6.—The Palmetto Hotel, on the North side, was robbed of $3,000 in cash and $13,000 in jewelry early to-day by four young men, all armed, who compelled the night clerk to open the safe and hand them the contents. They escaped in a taxicab.

WELL STAGED REVUE
GIVES MANY LAUGHS

Royal Victoria Theatre
Presents Bright Vaudeville
Show by the Originals

"Thumbs Up," the new revue of the Originals Company, presented last night at the Royal Victoria Theatre, entitles the soldier players to expect crowded houses for the balance of the week, the show being a series of laughs with scarcely a breathing space between. In one of the contrasting periods Gene Pearson, the leading "woman," presents one of the finest bits of real art when, as a heartless young girl in a simple white frock, he sings "Love's Old Sweet Song."

The stage settings are extremely simple, bringing out the great improvement in artistry of these veterans of the world war. The entertainment is a medley of brief sketches, songs and comedy turns, closing with a short playlet of the period of the Grand Monarque Louis the Fourteenth of France, "The Princess Must Marry."

LOTS OF LAUGHS

Jimmy Goode, the popular black-face comedian of the Originals, first introduces himself as a whole brass band, and having proven that, even under such handicaps, "Music Hath Charms," with a quick shake he became a kilted Scotsman equipped with bagpipes and quilled to skirl with the best.

The droll manner with which Jimmy Goode puts over his witty sallies made a great hit in all his appearances.

Bob Anderson was in great form throughout the revue, carrying the burlesque features of the show. One of his best efforts was his portrayal of the happy bachelor, immune to ladies' wiles, and his presentation of the perpetual bridesmaid delighted the audience.

The popular quartet proved as versatile as ever, their close harmony ballad singing being roundly appreciated.

A brief reminder of the war is presented by Bob Anderson, Alan Murray, Lionel Broadway and Jerry Brayford staging a poker game in a battle line, interrupted by a series of air raids, which bring income to the pessimist of the party as the bombs come closer to wiping out the gamblers.

The centre of the show is Gene Pearson, who makes a wonderfully effective girl. A gorgeous array of robes are displayed with great effect, and every appearance of this clever impersonator was rewarded with a round of applause, reinforced by another outburst as he took his curtain after each number. A new member of the company, Stuart Callaghan, is a remarkable ballet dancer, and won much applause.

MONSTERS FIGURE IN DEATH BATTLE
IN CAPITOL SHOW

Probably the most fearsome duel ever staged on this earth was between two bull prehistoric dinosaurs.

Paleontologists say that such encounters were frequent during the Reptilian Age which ended about 10,000,000 years ago.

A battle-to-death fight between two dinosaurs of the allosaurus species is depicted in "The Lost World," at the Capitol Theatre this week, which First National and Waterson R. Rothacker have completed after over seven years' production work.

Of all the dinosaurs reincarnated in this picture, the allosaurus is the most formidable. In the Jurassic period he was a mighty meat-eater as big as six elephants. He had claws as big as a man's forearm and teeth two inches in diameter. It is two monsters such as this that come together in "The Lost World."

As the story by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle goes, a party of adventurers—played by Leslie Love, Lewis Stone, Wallace Beery and Lloyd Hughes—find a magic plateau in unexplored South America where all forms of life have remained unchanged for 100,000 centuries.

MOVIE BROWN BEAR
FROLICS IN SNOWS
IN CHAPLIN FILM

John Brown who plays the role of himself—the big brown bear which follows Charlie Chaplin around in "The Gold Rush," his new United Artists Corporation release, now playing at the Dominion theatre, was one member of the company on location that really enjoyed his sojourn in the snow country.

It was Springfield and John Brown, spending his days and nights in Southern California, but when taken out to the mountains he thought he had returned to his one-time freedom of the snow.

Five days of snow, which was not to be broken for several days, and it was necessary to give him as much freedom as possible. He tried to break from his cage—and was showing signs of bad temper, now playing at the Dominion theatre, was one member of the company on location that really enjoyed his sojourn in the snow country.

On the day of his scenes, the ultimate in happiness came for John Brown, as then he was turned loose and following each "take"—he scampered off among the trees, to be captured after much difficulty and sent through his scene again.

Ruth Hamilton is an unusual role in the Coliseum play, "A Day's Sport," this week. Coliseum audiences are accustomed to see her in a vivacious part of a captivating vamp or some similar character, but in "A Day's Sport" she is the aggressive, dogmatic wife of the erring husband. She proves to be equally at home as she is cast this week.

Between participating in an amateur night on the Beverly, and singing a couple of songs for the audience, making a wild dash across shell-torn battlefields in France, saving a battalion of French troops from utter annihilation and then recovering from "temporary blindness" for scenes of her latest Paramount picture, showing at the Coliseum, Bebe Daniels crowded enough excitement into the production to justify the title, "The Crowded Hour."

Tom Mix rode into town last night in one of his most thrilling and entertaining roles in the William Fox photoplay "Riders of the Purple Sage" at the Columbia Theatre. This picture presents the popular Western star in a series of exciting incidents that give him an opportunity to display his daring and skill.

The combination of Tom Mix and Zane Grey, the author of the story, is one that insures a thrilling picture. Mabel Ballin and Marion Nixon are seen in support of the Western star in this picture, which was directed by Lynn Reynolds.

HOLLINS TO PLAY
"FUNERAL MARCH"
ON ARMISTICE DAY

The local Armistice Period Committee will be pleased and gratified to know that Dr. Alfred Hollins has expressed a desire to play Chopin's "Funeral March" at his organ recital here on Monday evening next at the Metropolitan United Church. He says that "having no opportunity to play anything in commemoration of Armistice Day in my own church I should very much like to play the immortal 'Funeral March' by Chopin in your city on the evening set aside in memory of Armistice Day."

Blind Organist
Popular Composer

Although Alfred Hollins, the noted English organist who is to appear in recital at the organ of the Metropolitan United Church on Monday next (Armistice evening) is best known throughout the world as a concert organist of the foremost rank, he is also one of the most popular composers for the organ of the present time.

While his technical equipment is amply sufficient to encompass the most severe forms of musical composition, such as the fugue and the symphony, he has preferred in his organ works to employ his facile gifts in the creation of concert overtures, and characteristic pieces of a less academic type, such as grand choruses, marches, intermezzi, and other works of melodic character. In addition to this direct appeal to the musical ears of his audience his compositions "fit" the organ (to use the parlance of the organists), that is, they "fit" the fingers and the feet of the performer, and the result is the peculiar melody of the organ.

In addition to examples of classic literature, and one of his audience will have an opportunity to enjoy some original compositions by one of the most popular organ composers of the present generation.

Boards of Trade Discuss Development Plans For Maritime Provinces

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Nov. 6.—The Maritime Boards of Trade in session here yesterday discussed industrial development of the Maritime Provinces.

The report of the committee of the St. John board on the survey of the Maritime Provinces was made at the joint expense of the three provincial governments and by an expert concern recommended by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, such surveys having been made of many United States centres to remarkable advantage.

The industrial needs of the Maritime Provinces were summed up as follows:

1. Lower railway freight rates to and from the West.

2. Cheap water transportation to Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and Fort William during the Summer.

3. Improved steamship service to Mediterranean ports and other overseas points.

4. An agricultural resurrection.

5. The practical development of Maritime mineral potentialities and necessary amendment of mining regulations.

6. Genuine interest in export possibilities.

7. Provincial advertising on an effective scale.

8. More population through immigration.

9. Definite means to prevent large Canadian concerns from hampering small new Maritime industries by unfair price cutting.

LUMBER TRAFFIC

Charging that increased importation of lumber from British Columbia through the Panama Canal into the United States was affecting the lumber industry of New Brunswick, H. P. Ruckliffe, traffic manager of the Bathurst Lumber Company, advocated there should be more reasonable rates to the Atlantic seaboard and preferential freight rates for lumber and the pulp and paper industries.

IMMIGRATION PLANS

A resolution on immigration was passed asking the Federal Government to institute and finance an immediate and aggressive immigration policy for the Maritime provinces, and continue it for not fewer than ten consecutive years. This policy to involve adequate organizations both overseas and in the Maritime Provinces.

Another resolution, passed asked that the Federal Government, as a national undertaking, equip the ports of the Maritime Provinces so they should not only meet present requirements, but be well in advance of those of the future.

FREIGHT RATES

The meeting also passed a resolution to the effect that the Maritime Provinces should be conceded a revision in railway freight and express rates to modify the disabilities under which they labor in marketing their goods in other parts of Canada.

British Doles and Migration Studied

London, Nov. 6 (Canadian Press Cable)—The London Daily Mail expresses pleasure at being able to congratulate the Secretary for Dominion Affairs, Lieut.-Colonel L. C. Amery, upon the formation of an inter-departmental committee to consider how far the unemployment dole discourages emigration from Great Britain.

The Mail cites the case of an alien burglar who had received a weekly dole of 22 shillings, as well as poor relief to the amount of 12 shillings before he was brought to book.

Archaeologists Approaching End of Task at Tomb of Tutankhamen

Coffin Found to Fit Very Closely in Inner Sarcophagus

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 6.—The body of King Tutankhamen is now believed definitely to have been discovered, a communique issued in Arabic by the Ministry of Works announces.

Tutankhamen's tomb was reopened October 12 in the presence of Egyptian officials. The lid of the first sarcophagus was lifted, revealing another, on which lay linen coverings and bouquets.

These were removed and revealed a work of unexampled beauty. This second sarcophagus bore an effigy of the God Osiris, decorated from head to foot and embellished with multicolored pieces of glass.

DIFFICULT TASK

"The sarcophagus itself was covered with a thin layer of gold on a marble ground and adorned with the wings of the serpent goddess Buto and the vulture goddess Nekhbet.

After this sarcophagus had been scientifically examined, it was removed from the first—an extremely delicate operation as the one fitted exactly inside the other and its delicate ornamentation might easily be injured by the slightest touch.

By October 22, however, it was possible to remove the cover from the second sarcophagus, disclosing a human shaped coffin, covered with a thin shroud which adhered to it.

Around the head and chest were a string of beads and flowers. The face was uncovered (or not covered according to the various translations) and is believed to represent young King Tutankhamen himself. (This is thought to imply that the shroud around the coffin did not cover the painted face customarily depicted upon such encasements.)

MUCH GOLD

After photographs had been taken, the shroud, beads and flowers, were removed, revealing a superb coffin of most artistic design, covered with gold ornaments. Unfortunately a

FARM MEN DISCUSS CANADA GRAIN ACT

Winnipeg, Nov. 6.—The Canadian Council of Agriculture, at its session here yesterday discussed the Canada Grain Act as revised at the last session of Parliament. No recommendations or resolutions on the subject were discussed.

The women's section presented a report to the meeting which was adopted. It contained the statement that a recommendation that trained psychiatrists examine intending immigrants in the country of their abode before they were passed for immigration had been acted upon, and that a Canadian doctor, responsible to the Dominion Department of Health, would be stationed in London for that purpose.

The Government, it was reported, had agreed to an advance inspection of the homes into which intending immigrant children were to be placed and that for the present no children under fourteen years old would be admitted.

VIEWS ON SESSION STATED BY MEIGHEN

Conservative Leader Disagrees With King Cabinet's Decision to Meet Parliament

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Federal Conservative leader, late yesterday afternoon issued the following statement dealing with the decision of the King Government to meet Parliament:

"The Premier's statement, stripped of its sophistry, is merely an announcement of his determination to hang on, in spite of a heavily adverse verdict from the people of Canada.

"The Cabinet, he says, 'considered the alternative of advising a second dissolution of Parliament. The Premier knows his Cabinet had no second alternative and could not get another dissolution no matter what they advised. They made their appeal and have been defeated.

"Mr. King is now merely the leader of a minority group. There has never been a case in Canada, and none for a third of a century in Britain, where the leader of a minority group has waited for the calling of Parliament or has refused to resign immediately the will of the people was known. Mr. Baldwin waited for Parliament in 1923, but Mr. Baldwin emerged from the election the leader of by far the largest group. In Mr. Baldwin's case also, Parliament being already called to meet in three weeks, there was no time for a new government to be formed and ready to meet the House.

DRURY'S HOUSE
"Mr. Drury in April, 1923, announced, and announced properly, that if another party were returned larger than his own in the then forthcoming Ontario provincial general election, it would be his constitutional duty to resign in favor of the leader of the party."

"Mr. King declared as the reason for his appeal to the people that his Government could not satisfactorily conduct public business when dependent upon Progressive support. In defiance of that declaration he now decides to cling to office, though dependent upon Progressive support.

"Of the twenty-seven Progressives, Independents and Labor candidates elected, eighteen of them denounced his record and defeated his candidates.

"The Premier himself and eight of his ministers have been rejected. The popular majority against his Government is overwhelming."

"To cling to office under such circumstances is usurpation of power and contempt of the popular will."

"In my seventeen years of experience here I have attended many conferences of religious bodies, but never have I attended one in which I could see more infinite possibilities," said Rt. Rev. A. Le Pender, Bishop of the Anglican diocese of New Westminster, in addressing the conference delegates.

"I bid you Godspeed," he continued, "and wish to express the fervent hope that the day may dawn when we shall all be united, marching forward to do battle with the mighty forces which surround us on every side."

Two-minute Silence On Armistice Day

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—Once again the Empire will honor the memory of those who died in the Great War by a two-minute silence on Armistice Day. The following statement was approved by the Canadian Cabinet, and made public last evening:

"In accordance with arrangements for the observance of Armistice Day sanctioned by His Majesty the King, the people of Canada are invited to mark the occasion by a two-minute silence at 11 a.m. on Wednesday, November 11. This is a special observance suggested by His Majesty, and is in addition to the regular celebration of the date recognized by the Canadian Parliament for the previous Monday."

G. CHAPMAN TO BE EXECUTED

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 6.—Gerald Chapman, notorious bandit, lost his fight for his life yesterday when the state supreme court, in a decision handed down here, held there was no error in the decision of the lower court convicting him of the murder of a policeman in New Britain October 12, 1924. The date for his execution has been set for early in December.

Ogdensburg, N.Y., Nov. 6.—The entire village of St. Regis Falls was menaced by flames last night. Pumping from a paper mill in the vicinity, used to force water for fighting fires, had failed and the high school and many other buildings were reduced

TO-MORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 7

An interesting lunar transit with Mercury in strong position also by mutual configuration, presages a lively day in business but one calling for particularly good management and attention if progress is to be made. There is an augury of an unplanned change or journey, but these should be carefully manipulated as the sign holds hazard. Also, Jupiter is not friendly for assisting financially.

Those whose birthday it is may have a lively year with change of travel, but success is to be won only by good management and proper attention to affairs in hand, especially the financial manipulation. A child born on this day may be quick, clever

Capt. W. G. Martin To Give Dramatic Recital To-night

Capt. Martin, who has been for several years engaged in the work of presenting dramatic recitals of the great masterpieces of literature, will to-night in the Metropolitan United Church present Channing Pollock's famous play, "The Fool." Capt. Martin's ability as a lecturer has been recognized by the Dominion Government who sent him to Great Britain upon a special lecturing mission. He is a gold medalist in oratory of Victoria University of Toronto.

The Bradford Examiner says: "Capt. Martin's characterization of 'The Fool' was regarded by many in the audience as one of his most noteworthy achievements. The play as presented was a sermon of inspiration. 'The Fool' himself being representative of a much needed type in the present world situation."

ROTARIANS WERE ENTERTAINED BY THE KUMTUKS MEMBERS

Service Clubs Held Successful Joint Gathering at Empress Hotel

Carrying out a pleasing custom inaugurated several years ago when the two service clubs decided to "get together" periodically for mutual inspiration and good fellowship, the Rotary and Kumtuka Clubs held a most successful joint dinner at the Empress Hotel last evening. Miss M. A. Wigley, president of the Kumtuka Club, was in the chair and the programme was in the hands of the business women. These three letters typified loyalty, service and daring, each a necessary attribute to the success of any club. The speaker made her remarks applicable to citizenship generally, and appealed to Victorians to exercise more loyalty, give greater and more unselfish service and show more initiative and daring in furthering the interests of Victoria.

A charming little play written by Madame Sanderson-McGinn and presented in costume by the authors, the "Madame and Betty Bradshaw and Miss Mustard" was received with enthusiasm. Other items on the programme included a clever parody of well-known songs sung by Miss Doris Bagshaw and Miss Foxall. An amusing letter written by Mrs. W. H. P. Sweeney in the Hashimura style was read by Mrs. H. V. Knight and caused much amusement. The items on the programme were interspersed by community singing of songs directed by Rotarian Bob Webb and selections played by the excellent Rotary orchestra.

The evening wound up with an informal dance to the strains of Ozzard's Orchestra, thus bringing to a close one of the most successful joint gatherings in the annals of the two clubs.

W.I. Prefer Many Small Fairs to One Large One

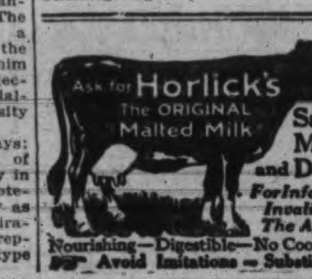

Lake Hill W.I. held their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Mercer, the president, in the chair. There was a good attendance and much business was dealt with. The meeting went on record as being in favor of the small fairs rather than one big one in Saanich, feeling that the big fair was no encouragement to the new competitor or the small grower. Mrs. W. Peddle gave a report on card parties held during the month and Mrs. Moody reported that a most successful Halloween party had been held on Saturday evening. Fancy costumes of all kinds were to be seen, adding greatly to the amusement of the evening. Mrs. Holyoake as a witch told fortunes in one corner while children attempted to eat apples hung by strings and policeman Peddle was warmly welcomed, an unusual occurrence on Halloween. The gratifying sum of $15.50 was realized from the evening's enjoyment, to assist the Solarium for Crippled Children.

Plans are underway to hold a dance in aid of the Solarium in the near future and Mrs. Walter Peddle was appointed convener and every institute member is requested to assist. The institute wishes to thank all those who helped in any way to make the Halloween party a success. A comprehensive report of the Institute's activities for the month was given by Mrs. Akerman and Mrs. Holyoake were the hostesses for the afternoon. Next Monday night's military 500 party being on Thanksgiving Day, the institute members will serve refreshments at the close of the game.

Rajahs Best Rulers For India, He Says

Most of the people of India are not ready for self-government and because of that there can be no confidence in the Chelmsford-Montagu reforms, according to Edward J. Verrieres of the Island of Jersey, who is at the Dominion Hotel. He was formerly on railway engineering work in India.

The best governed parts of India are the feudatory states under absolute monarchs, which are native rajahs, Mr. Verrieres said. Uncertainty of employment for Europeans has resulted in a decline in the number of British who are going to India, and to get young men to enter the service there it is now necessary to offer special inducements, Mr. Verrieres added.

It was decided at the meeting of this group to-day that a history of the bell should be written from the hieroglyphics on the bell itself. The original translation of this has been lost.

The Archdeacon of Columbia, Ven. E. P. Laycock, will conduct the Mission of Service which commences on Sunday at the Garrison Church of St. Paul's, Esquimalt. The services will continue every evening during the week at 7.30, and will be bright, simple, devotional, with well-known hymns, so that all may take part. The missioner will carry a direct message, and will close the mission on Sunday, November 15, with services timed at the usual Sunday hours.

Recommendations that O. P. W. Schwengers, president, represent the Chamber of Commerce, the Mayor J. Carl Pendray, represent the city and the Publicity Bureau be also represented at the conference of Canadian Boards of Trade at Winnipeg, were made in a report presented to the Chamber of Commerce directors this afternoon by J. W. Spencer. The importance of the conference was stressed and a recommendation was made that as many of the delegates as possible be induced to visit Victoria.

A committee has been investigating the possibilities of entertainment in this direction, and are endeavoring to co-operate with the management of the Crystal Garden and to arrange for Friday night entertainments during the winter.

D. W. Campbell, chairman of the group, proposed that recommendations be drawn up by the acting committee. A new committee was appointed by the chair to bring in final arrangements for these winter entertainments for approval of the group.

B.C. METAL MINES TO SEE NEW PROSPERITY PACE

With Lead on the Boom and Copper Coming up Strong, Production is Starting to Soar, Passing $30,000,000 Mark for First Eight Months of This Year.

Operating heads of British Columbia's chief mines, representing a production of over $40,000,000 of gold, silver, lead and other metals this year, are in session to-day as members of the Mining Association of British Columbia under President C. P. Browning of Britannia.

It was announced in connection with the meeting here that for the first eight months of this year the metaliferous mines of British Columbia had produced $30,733,000.

Discussions of the policies of the industry, taxation and legislative policies affecting the metaliferous mining were on this morning at the Empress Hotel. Before noon the conference went to the Parliament Buildings to discuss matters with members of the Government.

Those attending the conference declared that British Columbia is entering a period of mineral production and mining prosperity that will surpass anything that any in the industry have experienced. Not only is the production of gold and silver being stimulated, but there is a big demand for lead as a result of the development of electricity. This development, the members said, is also bringing a rising copper market, and this in turn is further stimulating mining development here.

One of the mining leaders at the gathering was W. R. Wilson of the Premier mine, who with Trites and Woods put over this now famous mine after it had encountered a long series of reverses and was abandoned by the Portland Canal district.

D. L. Pitt, manager of the Premier, is also at the conference. Mr. Pitt said that the summer program of extension work at the Premier is now nearing completion, and that it is expected to have the new mill in operation at the first of the year. The inauguration of this mill will mean increasing the mining of the Premier to 500 tons of ore a day, about twice the present rate. He also said that the new power house with two 300-horse power engines is complete, with a new water wheel and four new generators. A new oil tank holding 1,000,000 gallons, has also been constructed.

"We are going right along with our development work and keeping ahead of production," Mr. Pitt said. "The Premier mine is good for a long time. Although we are spending this year $700,000 on improvements, if we were not certain of the possibilities of the mine we would not be making all these outlays."

To-night the mining operators will hold a dinner at the Union Club.

PEACE RIVER LAND ALREADY DEMANDED. PREMIER DECLARES

Nothing New in Proposal That Province Seek to Gain Control of Northern Block

Tells How He Fought For Transfer Before Canadian Premier's Conference

In asking for the return of the Peace River Block to British Columbia, private members of the Legislature, who opened the subject yesterday, are proposing a scheme which the Provincial Government has been pressing for years, Premier Oliver stated to-day.

"At the conference of Provincial Premiers in Ottawa in the Fall of 1918," he said, "I formally asked the return of the Peace River land block to the Province. Mr. Meighen, who then Minister of the Interior, tried to stop me from mentioning the subject but I insisted and forced a vote of the meeting on it. After I had secured the return of the land, I filed a formal protest with the meeting against Mr. Meighen's hostile attitude. Repeatedly the subject was brought up and the Province has been advanced but no success has been possible."

In recent years the Provincial Government, in attempting to solve the Peace River transportation problem, has urged the Federal Government to use its Peace River lands for colonization purposes and to aid in the construction of a railway into this area.

REALTORS REPORT ELK LAKE VALUE

Valuators Tell Mayor Worth of Golf Course Tract

J. S. Connell Confers With Mayor Regarding Purchase

Conversion of Elk Lake Park into a pleasure resort took a long step forward this morning, when independent realty experts presented Mayor Pendray with a valuation of the golf course area of 140 acres proposed to be sold or leased to J. S. Connell of Vancouver. In company with Aldermen Woodward, Todd and Brown, City Engineer Preston, B. S. Heisterman and Arthur Wolfenden over the property this morning.

Discussing the matter with the Mayor at midday, the aldermen agreed that the city's price should bear some relation to the scope of the undertaking initiated by Mr. Connell, and that a large investment in improvements would justify some concession in the price of the land. This factor in any agreement would be more important if the immediate developments are extensive, as the remainder of the city's property would be improved in value and marketability.

At midday Mayor Pendray had a conference with Mr. Connell and the representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, when tentative plans for the new development were explained by the capitalist. The conference was resumed this afternoon at 1 o'clock in the Mayor's office.

United Church Bazaar — A very attended meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First Presbyterian United Church was held at the church parlors on Wednesday afternoon. Final arrangements for the coming bazaar were made at this meeting and committee appointments made. The beautiful assortment of goods received at the shower given at the residence of Mrs. Wilson was also turned over to the stallholders at the close of the meeting, which was also a sewing meeting. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Fair, Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. R. H. Morrison.

DIRECTORS HEAR OF PLANS FOR NEW ELK LAKE RESORT

J. S. Connell, Promoter, Sees Great Possibilities Here

Believing in the tourist business of Vancouver Island, J. S. Connell of Vancouver, contractor of years' experience, is interested in the Island and plans to build a great tourist resort here, C. P. W. Schwengers, president, said, in introducing Mr. Connell to directors of the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon. "He is interested in Elk Lake and its possibilities. After consultation with his confidants they decided they would, if terms could be made that would be acceptable to both parties, erect a chalet there, a number of cottages, and complete an eighteen-hole golf course."

"Would your plan call for taking over the whole of the Elk Lake property?" asked J. O. Cameron. "No, only sufficient for our needs," said Mr. Connell. "It would call for about 140 acres. I know the line but not the exact measurements," said Mr. Connell in answer to another question.

"We would require about 100 acres for the golf course. We would develop it in an charming and attractive way as far as possible and would have the first nine holes of the golf course ready for next season."

"There is a use for the tanks on the Elk Lake property," said Mr. Connell, "but we have not found use for it yet. Some one will have to give birth to an idea."

"We would develop the property so the tourists who came would be its best advertisers. I have visited many centres appealing to tourists but have found none with such possibilities as Vancouver Island."

SAANICH PETITION AGAINST CITY'S ACT READY ON TUESDAY

Reeve Mactool Confident of Legislative Sympathy

The petition of Saanich against the city's private bill validating the Esquimalt waterworks expropriation will probably be presented to the Legislature on Tuesday by Hon. T. G. Coventry, member for Saanich, Reeve Mactool announced this morning.

"There is no doubt in my mind but Saanich will receive much consideration on this matter of water supply," declared the Reeve. "We shall stress the action of the city in boosting rates from six cents to ten cents per thousand gallons with only five days' notice, after enjoyment of a ten-year contract. If the city would act in that manner when it had no real monopoly, how would the city administration act if the Legislature confirms them in a position of monopoly?"

"I am satisfied that prices would be raised from time to time, whenever the city authorities thought conditions compelled payment by Saanich."

WANTS LONG TERM

The Reeve declared that he is opposed to arbitration for any five-year period, but would welcome that course if a fifteen- or twenty-year contract were at stake. "The time is ripe for Saanich to object, in five years' time the political complexion of the House may favor the city more, and then the city will have consolidated its position in control of all the available water sources," he said.

In addition to the members of the order, there were present the following officials of the C.P.R.:

The hymns sung were "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" and "Abide With Me." The many beautiful floral tributes were conveyed to the cemetery in the late Mr. Bulger's own motor, in which he had his fatal seizure.

The friends acting as pallbearers were: Messrs. T. Moffat, J. H. Alexander, J. A. Heritage, J. McGown, J. Belanger, representing the C.P.R., and Dr. A. C. Sinclair. Brothers W. H. Cullin and P. W. Dempster read the "Good Fellows" burial service at the graveside, and the hymn sung was "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

COUNSEL GIVEN ACCESS TO BOOKS OF FRUIT MEN

Necessary to Defend Dealers,
Court is Told

Vancouver, Nov. 6.—On the application of A. McLeod Sinclair, K.C., for fifty-three Western Canadian fruit and produce dealers, who are awaiting trial in the assize court here on conspiracy and other charges, Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald yesterday directed that defendants' counsel should have complete and unrestricted access to their books and documents, which were seized by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and are collected here.

Mr. Sinclair complained that his auditors had been refused permission to make copies of documents, which are in a room at the courthouse and are guarded by R.C.M.P. constables; and he said the task of preparing the defence had been made very difficult because Mr. McLeod had some papers in the police barracks and others in his office and that, when tracing shipments, it was necessary to consult documents and books in these different places. He said that Mr. McLeod hindered the defence because he insisted on knowing what documents were being used for the defence.

Mr. Sinclair said the application was to embarrass the Crown.

Mr. Sinclair offered to pay the expense of transferring the books and documents, estimated to be two cartloads, from the R.C.M.P. barracks to the courthouse.

An order, accordingly, was made by his lordship, who pointed out that there were other rooms in the courthouse which could be used if the one already allotted was not large enough.

Discussing the date of trial, Mr. Justice McDonald stated that he thought the trial could open in the week of November 16.

U.S. TROOPS TO VISIT NEW WESTMINSTER

Part of Washington National Guard to Attend Armistice Service

New Westminster, Nov. 6.—Special permission from the Department of Militia and National Defence at Ottawa has been secured for a contingent of the 161st Regiment of the Washington National Guard to come to New Westminster from Bellingham to participate in a service next Sunday, commemorating the signing of the armistice. This, it is said, will be one of the few occasions on which uniformed United States soldiers have made a fraternal visit to Canada.

The United States troops will arrive on Saturday and remain in British Columbia over the week-end. The New Westminster Bugle Band will go to Bellingham to take part in a Thanksgiving Day celebration next Wednesday, the anniversary of the signing of the armistice.

hurrying toward where they had heard that cry for help. The two friends had just been talking about the visit of Jack Frost to the woods, for the Winter Elf was getting ready to make cold weather.

"Do you suppose that call came from any of my little rabbit boys or girls?" asked Uncle Wiggily, as he jumped along beside Mr. Whitewash.

"It's hard to tell," growled the bear, though his growl was not a cross one. "The voice, to me, sounded more like a frog's."

"Or a pussy cat's," suggested Uncle Wiggily.

But when, a little later, they pushed their way out of the woods and reached the edge of the pond, there they saw, close to shore, a red-headed duck sitting in the water.

"Help! Help! Help!" quacked the red-headed duck.

"Why do you need help?" asked Uncle Wiggily, who was no one near the quacking creature. "Has the Skillicy-Scallery Alligator got hold of your leg under water?"

"Oh, nothing like that!" answered the red-headed duck. "Help! Help! Help!"

"Why don't you help yourself?" asked Mr. Whitewash. "Come out on shore and we'll see what's the matter."

"Now they will not call me Red Head," quacked the duck.

Now they will not call me Red Head," quacked the duck.

matter. But we don't want to go in the water and get wet. Come out on shore!"

"I can't," quacked the duck. "I'm frozen fast in the ice!"

"Oh, now I see what has happened," spoke Uncle Wiggily. "Jack Frost was here a little while ago. He blew his cold breath over the water of the pond and the red-headed duck, who was in it, became frozen fast. Wait a minute, red-head," went on the bunny, "we'll break the ice and set you free."

Which Uncle Wiggily and Mr. Whitewash soon did. The duck waddled out on shore, wobbling its tail and very kindly thanked the rabbit gentleman and the polar bear.

"But I do wish you wouldn't call me Red Head," quacked the duck.

"Haven't you a red head, though?" asked the bear.

"Of course, I have," admitted the duck. "There are a lot of red feathers on my topknot, but I wish there were none—or at least I wish they were black or brown or any color but red. How would you like to be called Red Head all your life?" the duck asked Uncle Wiggily, sadly like.

"Well," said the bunny, "you see they couldn't call me Red Head because I'm not that."

"And I wish I weren't!" quacked the duck. "All my friends make fun of me. They sing: 'Red Head! Red Head! When you going to come to bed? It makes me so unhappy! I wish I knew how I could be a white head or a black head or a brown head,' sighed the unhappy Red Head."

"Ha, I have an idea!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "Winter will soon be here. You head may be cold, Mr. Duck, so why not wear a cap over it. You could wear a white cap or a black cap or a brown cap. Then no one would see your red feathers."

"A very good idea," said the duck. "But where am I to get a cap?"

"Come to my bungalow," invited Uncle Wiggily. "My wife, or Nurse Jane Fussy Wussy will make you a cap to cover your red feathers."

And surely enough, bidding Mr. Whitewash good-by, Uncle Wiggily took the red-headed duck to his bungalow. Nurse Jane made him a dark brown cap, from some bark Uncle Wiggily gnawed off a tree.

"Now they will not call me Red Head," quacked the duck as he put on the cap and, thinking his new friends, waddled away.

"Well, that was quite an adventure," said Uncle Wiggily. "I felt Jack Frost and helped a red-headed duck. Now I am going to the store to get you a pound of sugar, Nurse Jane." But all of a sudden, while the bunny gentleman was speaking, there was a rattle, a bang and a crash. Something whizzed along the road in front of the hollow stump bungalow. Uncle Wiggily's feet were knocked from under him, and away he was carried, shouting:

"Whoo! Stop! Wait!" But they wouldn't wait. Away they went with him—and where and how you shall hear to-morrow. But if you see the rocking horse trying to run away with the canary bird's rubber boots, please tell the police de-

BELGIAN STEAMSHIP GERTRUDE RELEASED BY CUSTOMS TO-DAY

Burned Deck Fittings to Make Port, 1,173-ton Liquor Carrier Was Ten Months at Sea; Two Members of Crew Deserted in Speed Boat in Southern Waters; No Papers or Cargo Found on Board, Say Authorities.

Having no quarrel with the conduct of the vessel while in Canadian waters customs officers to-day passed the Belgian steamship Gertrude after she had replenished her empty bunkers and made the regulation call at quarantine.

Customs officers George E. Norris and J. Angus boarded the Gertrude at Sooke yesterday morning, staying on the vessel until she had taken on her coal and passed to William Head for pratique.

To the Canadian authorities Capt. Girard Nyland, master of the vessel, declared his ship had infringed no Canadian regulations, nor had any attempt to do so been contemplated. Asked for the bills of lading, which would disclose cargo particulars, Capt. Nyland replied that all his documents had been shipped ahead to the Vancouver agents of the vessel.

According to the Canadian authorities there was no cargo in the holds of the Gertrude when she touched at Sooke on Wednesday evening, but her master made the formal declaration that none of the cargo was transferred to other vessels in Canadian waters.

The Gertrude, a steamship of 1,173 tons net, left Antwerp in February of this year, allegedly with a cargo of liquor for Rum Row. On March 28 she passed from Balboa, and that was her last reported appearance until the time at which she was posted as missing and long overdue by her Antwerp agents.

The Gertrude was sighted at Sheringham Point on Wednesday afternoon, where she picked up a pilot. Entirely out of bunker fuel the Belgian steamship burned her wooden fittings to reach Sooke Harbor, taking three hours to cover the six miles intervening. At Sooke her master sent out word to Victoria, where a scowload of coal was ordered to enable her to proceed.

After satisfying themselves that the Gertrude had infringed no Canadian regulations and was genuinely in need of coal the customs officers left the ship when she reached William Head. After securing pratique the Belgian steamship passed up for Vancouver.

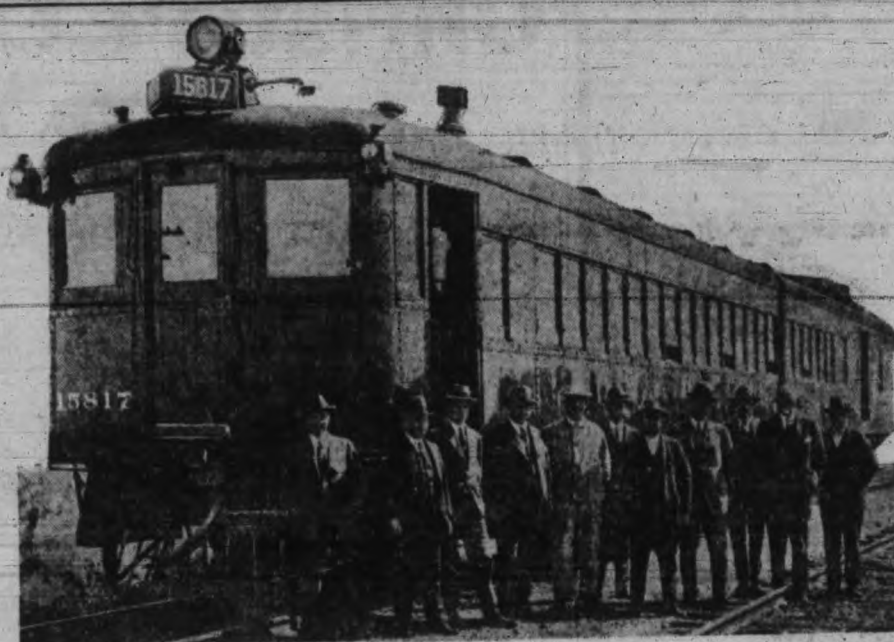

It was while allegedly swinging at anchor off Rum Row that two of the ship's crew grew tired of the monotony of the life and deserted the vessel. They are said to have slipped over the side to the deck of a speed boat at night, and to have taken their dunnage with them.

The remainder of the crew will see their first shore leave in ten months at Vancouver, when the Belgian vessel docks there this evening.

Makura Delayed

Delayed by non-arrival of mail from England for the Antipodes, the Union Steamship Company's liner Makura got away for Sydney at noon Thursday, two days behind her scheduled sailing time.

FUEL-ELECTRIC CAR OF CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS

Over 15,000 people viewed the new oil-electric propelled car of the Canadian National Railways, shown above, after it reached Vancouver on Thursday. The self generating electric car traveled over 2,900 miles, from Montreal to Vancouver, in under three days, taking some mountain hills at forty miles an hour and doing over sixty miles an hour on the level in places. The self propelled car left Vancouver again at 8 a.m. to-day for Edmonton, where it is expected to arrive at 11:30 a.m. Saturday. Fuel oil engines operate dynamos to produce the electricity by which the car is driven. The car is the product of Canadian National experimental, and bids fair to bring about an era of railway locomotion that will supplant steam operation. It is claimed. Its running costs from Montreal to Toronto for fuel exclusive of wages was $1.50 for fuel oil, and 48 cents for lubricating oil, for a distance of 334 miles. The car accommodates some sixty passengers with baggage and mail.

Girls Make Trip Down West Coast to Victoria in Launch

With a party consisting chiefly of girls and women, the six-five-foot launch Evelyn braved the billows of the treacherous West Coast of Vancouver Island and arrived in Victoria last night after a non-stop trip from Nitinat. The boat left Nitinat yesterday morning and completed the whole trip in eight and one-half hours.

The party was made up of the employees of the Nitinat Packing Company, which has closed down for the season. The employees with their season's pay decided that they did not want to wait for the regular passenger boat, and all packed into the launch. The party are all at the Strathcona Hotel to-day. Most of them live in Vancouver and will continue their journey there to-day. Some are going first to Seattle to replenish their wardrobes and do their buying for their return to city life. The launch will also go on to Vancouver for the winter. They said the cany season was poor.

Those in the party included Mrs. C. Douglas, Miss Corinne Olsen, Miss M. Douglas, Miss H. Douglas, Mrs. Jenny Doving, Mrs. Jean Gailbraith, Miss O. Olsen, Miss Mary Anderson, Miss Hulda Larson, Miss S. Snyder, A. Hagen, Mehl, Clay and Chase.

MORPHINE SEIZURES MAY LEAD TO ARREST IN HAMBURG OF AN ALLEGED SHIPPER THERE

Important Disclosures Said to Follow Seizure at Vancouver of Two Lots of Morphine Intended for Trans-Pacific Boats; Shipment in Bond From Germany to Japan Was Blind to Enter Canada, it is Asserted.

Ottawa, Nov. 6 (Canadian Press)—Revelations brought about through the recent seizure at Vancouver of a number of trunks of morphine, valued at over $100,000, are expected to result shortly in the arrest of a German citizen resident in Germany and believed to be involved in one of the biggest schemes yet unearthed here for the smuggling of morphine into Canada. The seizure was made by Vancouver customs officials at the instance of the Federal Department of Health.

WATER LEVEL IS CAUSING CONCERN

Tie-ups Continue General on Welland Canal

St. Catharines, Nov. 6.—Traffic is again moving on the Welland Canal after the fourth serious tie-up during the season as the result of low water. From Tuesday night until 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon not one boat was able to pass through the aqueduct to Welland, and downward traffic did not get under way until 10 o'clock last night.

The steamer Willow Bay was the first to be caught on the bottom of the stone structure, there being a line of twenty stalled steamers before traffic was resumed, with the raising of the water in the channel after the unfavorable wind on Lake Erie had shifted.

The municipalities of St. Catharines, Merritt and Thorold, are sending a resolution to Ottawa protesting against the Chicago drainage canal, as a contributory cause to these tie-ups which in each instance means the shutting off of the water supply to the old Welland Canal, from which numerous factories get their water power.

Railway Profits Are Shrinking it Is Now Contended

Operating Costs and Taxation Increase While Net Revenues Go Down

The total gross revenues of class I railroads of the United States in 1915 were $9,905,000 each day, while in 1924 the daily revenues averaged $16,955,000, an increase of $4,451,000. Operating expenses and taxes in 1915 amounted to $7,088,000 each day, while in 1924 the daily average was $12,659,000.

The figures show that net operating income in 1915 was $2,899,000 each day, while in 1924 it averaged $2,697,000, or $202,000 less each day in the latter than in the former year. Billions of new capital were invested in the property in the meantime and a much better service rendered the public in 1924 than in 1915. No other industry, it is contended, continues to improve the service it renders while the rewards from its activities continue to decrease.

MARINE NOTES

Southbound in the regular service of the Admiral line the S. Ruth Alexander clears from Victoria for San Francisco at 11 o'clock to-night, one day late on her schedule. A general overhaul at Seattle delayed the vessel which would otherwise have sailed yesterday.

The Victoria Machinery Depot is putting the finishing touches to the fuel oil tank of the Victoria Tug Company's new vessel, Strath. The tank will hold 10,000 gallons of fuel oil for the Diesel operated craft to be launched at the end of this month.

The B.C. Coast Service vessel Princess Louise is drydocked at Esquimalt, where Yarrows Limited will clean, paint and overhaul her to-day and to-morrow. The Louise was docked yesterday afternoon and work started on her early this morning.

The steamship Mongolia of the Panama Pacific Line by arriving in quarantine at San Francisco at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, established a record for the fastest commercial voyage yet made between a California port and New York. It is claimed. Her latest time was fourteen days twenty hours from Los Angeles harbor, and sixteen days six hours from San Francisco. The length of the voyage is 5,560 miles.

SLIDE BLOCKED FRASER TO SALMON

Falling Off in Sockeye Run Attributed to Blockade at Hell's Gate

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—Reports received by the Department of Marine and Fisheries are to the effect that a good run of sockeye salmon took place this year for the first time since 1909 in the Stuart Lake district at the headwaters of the Fraser River, B.C.

The absence of sockeye at this once important sockeye area of the Fraser River during the past sixteen years is due, according to the department, to the rock slide which occurred in Hell's Gate Canyon in the lower Fraser in 1913. This slide completely blocked the river to the ascent of salmon.

Records show that a large run of sockeye followed by three small runs has occurred every four years in the Fraser River. The big run of 1909 ascended the Fraser, but the slide at Hell's Gate occurred during the big year of the succeeding cycle of 1913.

The return of the sockeye to the upper Fraser this year is attributed by many to the operations of the fish hatchery on Stuart Lake, the department station.

Minnedosa Floated

Pushing, Holland, Nov. 6 (Canadian Press Cable)—The Canadian Pacific liner Minnedosa, bound from Antwerp for Montreal, went aground off Wlengen and was delayed for an hour and a half, after which it was refloated unassisted and proceeded.

The Minnedosa, of 14,600 tons, was built by Harland and Wolff at Belfast in 1915, and is operated by the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services out of Montreal.

DAVIDSON NOT IN CHARGE OF LIQUOR NOW, SAYS TWIGG

Sees Manson's Hand in Administration; Brewers' Ring Really at the Helm

Denounces Persecution of Doukhobors and Asks Attorney-General's Suspension

Beer, for years the regular legislative diet of the British Columbia Legislature, trickled back into that assembly again yesterday when H. D. Twigg, Conservative, Victoria, charged that the enforcement of beer regulations under the present Government had proved utterly unsatisfactory. The liquor business of the Province, he declared, was no longer in the charge of Liquor Commissioner Davidson but had fallen into the hands of Attorney-General Manson.

"The beer situation is not satisfactory," Mr. Twigg asserted. "Two men are trying to run the liquor administration—the Attorney-General and Mr. Davidson, and it is becoming more and more clear as time goes on that Mr. Davidson is by no means the sole administrator. Time and time again it has become plain before the public that Mr. Davidson is doing what he is told to do by higher-ups."

The control of beer in Vancouver, Mr. Twigg charged, is in the hands of a "ring" at the head of which is Henry Reifel, a leading brewer. In Vancouver, he said, no one can buy beer except by permission of Reifel, who, he understood, also controlled some sixty Vancouver liquor bars. As a result, he stated, a monopoly of the worst kind had been created in British Columbia and poor quality beer was being sold because of the lack of competition.

POOR BEER

"The beer we are getting to-day," he said, "is very poor and the price we pay for it is the best. No number of men in British Columbia are entitled to control practically the largest revenue-producing thing the Government has. The loopholes for corruption are too large."

Mr. Twigg suspected that the sale of food and tobacco was prohibited in British Columbia beer bars because Reifel objected to anything that might reduce the consumption of beer.

FAVORITISM CHARGED

The Victoria member alleged favoritism in the handling of beer licenses. He said that a hotel had been built at the Gorge here, at a cost of $15,000 or more on a promise of a beer license when it was completed, but no license has been forthcoming. Perhaps, he remarked, Reifel had objected to this license, too.

Again, the Government had refused a license to a man named Levi on the Malahat Highway, and then had granted a license to a resort at Mill Bay which was not a hotel.

Dealing at length with the Half Way House in Esquimalt, Mr. Twigg stated a gentleman employed as a Liquor Commissioner and "fired" by the Government, had been given a position in the Finance Department. While in that Government employ he had secured the transfer of a beer license at the Half Way House to himself, although a previous applicant, named Eaton, for such a license had been turned down. The license, he explained, had been given to the first applicant, without further advertisement, and the transferred to the Government official, while he was still in the civil service.

"Is that the Joker?" inquired Major R. J. Burde.

"I understand that is his name," Mr. Twigg replied.

Mr. Twigg's speech was featured by a scathing attack on the Government for its handling of the Grand Forks-Greenwood election. After describing what he had seen himself in this contest he concluded with a ringing demand for the suspension of Attorney-General Manson for his part in election irregularities until the whole matter had been investigated.

CHARGES INTIMIDATION

The Victoria member charged the Government with deliberately intimidating Grand Forks-Greenwood voters by threatening to press the collection of irrigation dues if they did not vote for the Liberal candidate. The ballots in the election had been printed on such thin paper that it had been possible to see exactly how every man voted and the people had been told before the poll that the Government would note whether they supported it or not.

DOUKHOBORS PERSECUTED

In the same election, he alleged, the Government had been guilty of "deliberate and diabolical persecution" of the interior Doukhobors. The Government's campaign against the Russian colonists, he declared, had been carried out simply to please the people of the constituency before the poll. Before the necessity of an election had arisen, he charged, the Government had failed utterly to pay any attention to the Doukhobor situation. Premier Oliver, he said, had not even answered a letter from Peter Veregin, Doukhobor leader, when he offered to supply the names of the revolutionary colonists who intended to burn schools in the community.

VEREGIN'S LETTER

Mr. Twigg read Veregin's letter but the Premier denied that the Doukhobor chief had referred to the suspected incendiaries. Only the Ir- been mentioned, the Premier said. Mr. Twigg, however, persisted that the Government had been warned of impending fire outrages and had failed to act to prevent them. Then, on the eve of the election, it had persecuted the Doukhobors to make it self popular with the electors.

Mr. Twigg painted a pathetic picture of a sale of Doukhobors' goods to pay their fines, telling how household necessities, clothes and everything else in the Doukhobors' homes had been carted away by Government order. No worse outrages had ever been perpetrated in a British country than this systematic pillaging of the colony, he declared.

Mr. Twigg bitterly assailed J. R. Colley, Liberal Member for Kamloops, whom Conservatives tried unsuccessfully to unseat some time ago. It was true, he said, that Mr. Colley had been acquitted by the courts, "But," he added, looking at Mr. Colley, "there is another court in which members of this House are supposed to belong and in that court you stand arraigned and in that court you have been found guilty."

Mr. Twigg called the handling of absentee votes in British Columbia one of the worst scandals in the history of the Province. When the federal voters' list had been revised, he said, 2,800 names which had appeared on the provincial list for Vancouver had to be wiped off as no such people existed.

Premier Oliver pointed out that the voters' list had been compiled under laws which had been maintained for many years and by officials appointed by the former Conservative Government.

NEW TAX ASKED

Mr. Twigg urged the Government to raise revenue for new roads by a "wheel tax" on tourist cars based on their size and ranging from $2.50 to $5 per car.

He criticized free tourist automobile camps, which robbed hotel keepers and others of business. The Government, he said, should at least inspect these camps to see that they were in proper moral and sanitary condition.

Mr. Twigg urged the Government to secure from the Federal Government the Peace River Block, held in trust for the Province. "The purpose of the trust had expired and the Province should have the land to help it in solving the P.G.E. railway problem, he said.

Mr. Twigg spoke for two hours and a half.

Metchosin

Special to The Times

Metchosin, Nov. 6.—The regular monthly meeting of the Metchosin Women's Institute was held in the Metchosin Hall on Wednesday afternoon, there being a very good attendance. The chair was taken by the President, Mrs. J. McCreight. The provincial potato show was discussed and it was regretted that the branch could not enter an institute exhibit, as there were not sufficient members with the right types and quality of potatoes to make up the required entry for an institute exhibit, but four of the members will enter individual exhibits. The community library was discussed, and it was announced that anyone wishing to join now could do so and their subscription would carry them for the remainder of this year and 1926.

The Librarian, Miss Taylor, reported that three books were missing and asked that these be turned in at once. Quite a few new members had joined the library.

The secretary, Mrs. A. B. Taylor, gave an interesting and comprehensive report of the Island Convention of Women's Institutes, which she attended as delegate. A short address was given on "Canadian Gardens" by Mrs. Allree.

A recent advertisement in the personal column of a provincial newspaper evoked a kindly response in the same column two days later. "Partly that lost purse containing $200 need worry no longer; it has been found."

THE TIME-WORN TOWN

By J. S. Fletcher

"What was it that you saw?"

The girl hesitated. Evidently on the verge of a fresh outburst of tears, she compressed her rather lip-looking fixedly at the ledge of the witness-box.

"Don't be afraid," said Meekling. "We only want the truth; tell that, and you've nothing to be afraid of, nor to reproach yourself with. Now what did you see?"

The girl's answer came in a whisper.

"I saw Dr. Wellesley."

"You saw your master, Dr. Wellesley. Where did you see Dr. Wellesley?"

"On the hall staircase, sir."

"On the hall staircase. That I suppose, is the main staircase of the house? Very well. Now where were you?"

"Up on the top landing, sir."

"What were you doing there?"

"I'd just come out of my room, sir. I'd been getting dressed to go out."

"And how came you to see your master?"

"I heard a door open on the landing below, sir, and I just looked over the bannister, to see who it was."

"Who was it?"

"Dr. Wellesley, sir."

"Dr. Wellesley. What was he doing?"

"He'd just come out of the drawing-room, sir."

"Are you sure he'd come out of that particular door?"

"Well, sir, I saw him close it behind him."

"What happened then?"

"He stood for a minute, sir, on the landing."

"Doing anything?"

"No, sir, just standing."

"And what then?"

"He went downstairs, sir."

"And disappeared?"

"He went towards the surgery, sir."

"How was the staircase lighted when you saw all this?"

"Well, sir, there was a light in the hall, at the foot of the staircase, and there was another on the drawing-room floor landing."

"Then you could see Dr. Wellesley quite clearly?"

"Yes, sir."

"How was he dressed?"

"He'd his surgery jacket on, sir—a white linen jacket."

"You saw Dr. Wellesley quite clearly, wearing a white linen jacket, and coming out of the drawing-room door. Now I want to ask you about the drawing-room. Is there another room, a small room, opening out of Dr. Wellesley's drawing-room?"

"Yes, sir."

"How big is it?"

"Well, sir, it's a little room—not very big, sir."

"What is it used for? What is there in it, now?"

"Nothing much, sir. Some book-cases, and a desk, and a chair or two."

"Is there a little door on its further side—the side next to the Moot Hall?"

"Yes, sir."

"Have you ever seen it open?"

"No, sir, never."

"You don't know where it gives access to?"

"No, sir."

"Might be a cupboard door, eh?"

"I always thought it was a cupboard door, sir."

"Very good. Now I want you to be very particular about answering my next question. What time was it when you saw Dr. Wellesley come out of his drawing-room?"

"It was just about a quarter to eight, sir."

"Are you quite sure about that?"

"Quite sure, sir."

"Did anything fix the time on your mind?"

"Yes, sir—at least, I heard the clocks strike the quarter, just after the Moot Hall clock, sir, and the parish church."

"You're sure it was a quarter to eight o'clock that you heard?"

"Yes, sir—quite sure."

"Why are you quite sure?"

The witness reddened a little, and looked shyly aside.

"Because I didn't think anything of it, sir."

"You didn't think anything of it? And pray when did you begin to think something of it?"

"Well, sir, it was—it was when the police began asking questions."

"And of whom did they ask questions?"

"Me and the other servants, sir."

"Dr. Wellesley's servants?"

"Yes, sir."

"How many servants has Dr. Wellesley?"

"Four, sir—and a boy."

"So the police came asking questions, did they? About Dr. Wellesley? What about him?"

"Well, sir, it was about what we knew of Dr. Wellesley's movements on that evening, sir—where he was from half-past seven to eight o'clock. Then I remembered, sir."

"And told the police?"

"No, sir, not then. I said nothing to anybody—at first."

"But you did later on. Now, to whom?"

The witness here began to show more signs of nervousness.

"Don't cry," said Cotman. "Whom did you first mention this to?"

"Well, sir, it was Mrs. Lane. I got so upset about it that I told her."

"Who is Mrs. Lane?"

"She's the lady that looks after the Girl's Friendly Society, sir."

"Are you a member of that?"

"Yes, sir."

"So you went and told Mrs. Lane all about it?"

"Yes, sir."

B.C. MUST FACE P.G.E. ISSUE NOW, SAYS PERRY, DEMANDING EXTENSION OF LINE NORTHWARD

Policy of Drift in Railway Problem Roundly Scored by Northern Member; Only Extension of Line Into Peace River Offers Any Hope of Relief From Debts Which Pyramid Every Year, He Warns; Has Definite Programme for Solving Financial Difficulties.

Decision at the present session of the Legislature to construct the Pacific Great Eastern Railway through to the Peace River district and thus fulfil the original purpose of the line, the only purpose which could redeem the $50,000,000 of public money sunk in that venture, was demanded yesterday by H. G. Perry, Liberal for Fort George, in one of the ablest and most constructive addresses heard on the floor of the British Columbia Assembly in several years.

The financial situation of the P.G.E. demanded immediate and drastic action, Mr. Perry declared, and he expressed the faith that there was sufficient mental and moral stuff in the Legislature to grapple with it. There were three courses open to the Government and the Legislature, he said. The present policy of dilly-dallying could be continued with its consequent steady increase in debt and operating losses. The road could be abandoned, its material salvaged and the Province could settle down to carrying the tremendous debt. Or the road could be finished somewhere.

EXTENSION NOT ENOUGH

Merely finishing the road to Prince George, he said, would not help the financial position, although it would please his own constituents. No where on the line from North Vancouver to Prince George could the member see the possibilities of creating enough traffic to make the road a paying concern.

As a further premise to his proposed solution Mr. Perry declared that the P.G.E. had never been given the same chance as had been afforded to other railways. Whereas every other railway built in this Province had received land grants of cash subsidies, the P.G.E. as a corporate entity had received no such aid either from the Province or the Federal Government.

HAS DEFINITE PLANS

On this foundation, which he carefully elaborated, Mr. Perry erected the structure of his proposed solution as follows:

1. Write off the pyramided interest totals reducing the capitalization of the company to the actual cost of the line. The surplus debt must be absorbed as part of the Provincial public debt.
2. Revenues of the Crown from the territory contiguous to the railway, should be credited to the railway, as except for its construction they would never have been received.
3. Make the P.G.E. company a grant of land for twenty miles on each side of the railway to give the company an asset to develop.
4. Have the railway adopt a vigorous colonization policy and strive to get new industries along its line.
5. Make provision without delay by bond flotations to complete the line to the Peace River, supporting that project by launching an immediate drive for these objectives:

- (a) For return to the Province of the Peace River Block and the Railway belt lands.
- (b) For a colonization subsidy from the Federal Government, and
- (c) For an agreement with the Alberta Government to have all traffic for the coast originating on the E. D. & B.C. Railway route over the P.G.E.

NEED GRAIN OUTPUT

Only the vast grain production of the Peace River belt, which in ten years with railway service could be producing 100,000,000 bushels of grain a year, would make adequate tonnage to make the P.G.E. pay for itself, Mr. Perry declared, basing his estimate of 100,000,000 bushels on official reports stating the potential production to be as high as 600,000,000 bushels.

He reminded the House that the Peace River problem was a British Columbia problem as well as a Dominion problem and that citizens of this Province were in the north waiting for word from their Government that would hold out a ray of hope to them.

Continuation of the present policy of drift, he said, was unthinkable, while to tear up the line would depopulate the country and sacrifice millions of dollars of taxation and royalty revenue now being received. Since the line was built land, personal property and income taxes from the contiguous territory had been $213,000, mining receipts $600,000 and from land sales $1,480,000. The increase between 1911 and 1918 had been 400 per cent, he said. Other sources of revenue, including timber royalties, he said, he had not tabulated.

REVENUE NOT ENOUGH

While there were great resources between Quesnel and Prince George he did not believe they would produce enough tonnage to make the road pay, although they would meet the $50,000 to $75,000 additional interest charge entailed in the cost of that new construction.

In support of his contention that the P.G.E. should be given greater assets to develop, Mr. Perry cited the precise extent of the land grants and cash subsidies given other railways, the figures running as high as 20,000 acres in the mile of railway and $10,000 a mile straight subsidy. Altogether 8,000,000 acres and $38,000,000 in cash have been granted by the British Columbia Legislature to railways, while the Dominion Government had granted 3,000,000 acres of land and $154,000,000 in cash to railways in British Columbia.

NO SUBSIDIZES TO P.G.E.

The P.G.E. had had no land grants and no Federal aid, although it was clearly a colonization road, and the Dominion proposed building the Hudson Bay Railway as a national enterprise without a cent of cost to the provinces benefited.

Mr. Perry stated that the railway debt interest was being pyramided at the rate of $2,500,000 a year in increasing proportions, and that despite the present efficient management very little reduction in operating loss had been possible. He criticized severely the decision to build from Squamish to Prince George instead of from Prince George to Peace River at the outset, and the policy of going ahead with construction for a year or two, then laying off for several years and starting in again.

WOULD ADMIT INCOMPETENCE

To continue that policy of drifting one year longer would be an admission that this Government and Legislature were incompetent to deal with a pressing business problem, he declared.

One effect of giving the railway land grants and of completing it would be to create a tangible asset which one of the great railway companies might be prepared to take over at a fair valuation.

The only way the railway could be made to pay at all, he said, was to make traffic, and the only place-tonnage was available was in the Peace River.

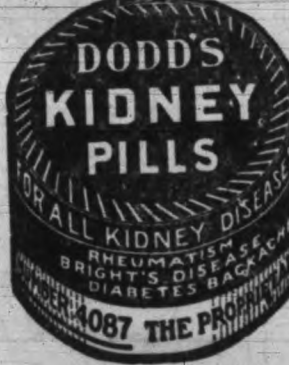

MUST CREATE TONNAGE

In order to save anything out of the wreckage, therefore, he maintained, it was necessary to spend more money to create tonnage. He gave many statistics of the extent of the area to be tapped in the Peace River, of the population it would support and of its productivity. Completion, too, he said, would create northbound tonnage for the products of the coast region going in to serve the new population.

Mr. Perry's whole speech was so logically constructed and so forcefully delivered that he held the close attention of a full House throughout his address, and won a sustained round of applause at the finish from both sides of Mr. Speaker such as has seldom been heard in the B.C. Legislature.
